

Shooter Ready

Mike didn't do things by half measures. When he made a reloading machine he made the best reloading machine. When he improved the design of a machine gun he improved it to a point that brought it back from being mothballed and into current, standard, military usage. When he made a video about competition shooting he used the best competition shooter in the world, Rob Leatham.

He also took that video to places that no competition shooting video had gone to before. There are night shoots with tracers, helicopters, instruction from the best competition shooter alive, and even a fantasy shootout sequence. He called the video "Shooter Ready?" and you can see a promo for it below.
